The resolutions offered by Mr. Davis were then adopted without discussion, and thus, as far as the House is concerned, the charges have been formulated upon which Judge Campbell will be proceeded against.
The matter now goes to the Senate, as it requires concurrent action.

will be a call of the House. The friends of Judge Campbell are naturally hard at work. The Judge himself is still here, but he remains in his rooms at the hotel, and is evidently taking no personal part. Mr. Hunley, of Malhews, is one of Judge Campbell's staunchead supporters, and will no doubt make a speech against the re-

TAKEN UP PROMPTLY.

The House lest no time in taking the matter up yesterday. Shortly after it was called to order at noon, Speaker Ryan laid the resolutions and the committee reports before the body.

Mr. Hunley, of Mathews, arising to a question of personal privilege, said a rumor to the effect that he would be Judge Campbell's leader on the floor of the House having been published in the press, he desired to make known his true status. He was only one of a large number who think that the facts proved are not sufficient to justify the removal of Judge Campbell from office, however deserving of censure he may be. So far as he was aware. Judge Campbell had no particular leader. There was no reason, Mr. Hunley said, why he should be so regarded; for, living in a section remote from Amherst, he only had no claim on him whatever, personal or political.

Continuing, Mr. Hundley said he intend to act in the case according to his own convictions, without regard to Judge Campbell's wishes. He hoped that no one would wait for him to lead, but that all who are opposed to the removal of Judge Campbell would unite with him is contending for what they believe to be fair and right.

Mr. Folkes thought the lines should be clearly defined once for all, and he saw no use of bringing in all the charges, upon which the committee themselves were not agreed. Mr. Sebrell, of the committee, said the question was a very plain one, and was simply to determine upon which specifications Judge Campbell should be tried. He saw no use for delay, but thought the body should proceed at once to perfect the charges.

Mr. Davis, having, charge of the majority report, made a brief speech, in which he very clearly defined the present status of the case.

UPON ITS MERUITS.

Before he got through, Mr. Davis entered slightly upon the merits of the case. Mr. Cardwell suggested that the question of specifications be voted upon separately and Mr. Davis proceeded with his speech, let thought the four charges made in the majority report had been fully proved, and he therefore contended that they should be adopted. He said it was sought here to emasculate the report of the committee and to eliminate the liquor charge, which, he thought, was a most serious one, and to strike it out was to weaken the report.

Mr. Southall offered a resolution as a substitute for the motion of Mr. Polkes, providing that each of the specifications be voted upon separately.

Mr. Folkes withdrew his motion and Mr. Southall made a powerful speech for his resolution. been sustained.

Mr. Southall's remarks were listened to earnestly, and he grew eloquent in his appeal to the body not to do Judge Campbell any injustice by fastening upon him a charge which had not been borne out by the testimony. It was plain that the case was now practically up on its meris and Mr. Sipe, of the committee, declared that he did not think the matter should, on a motion to strike out, be considered upon its merits.

"Prescriptions bottles" and "medicated liquor" were referred to by Mr. Southall, and he reviewed in a brief but able manner the evidence before the committee under the specification which he moved to strike out. He was asked a number of quostions by Messrs, Lee and Lion, of the committee.

The speech of Mr. Southall was a very strong one, and he dissected the evidence under specification with characteristic ability. He did not approve of things alleged against Judge C. J. Campbell in the specification, but some of them had not been sustained, and others were not, to his mind, such as should be considered as of enough gravity to be made a part of the report of the committee. Without reaching a vote, the House, at 3 o'clock, took a recess until 3:30.

The sudden death of Mr. James H. Bruce early yesterday morning came as a great shock to his many friends and acquaintances throughout the city. On Wednesday last Mr. Bruce was taken sick with acute neuraligia, but while he sufered great pain there was no apprehension of serious results. Prior to that time he had been apparently in excellent physical condition. Up to the very time of his death there was no warning that the end was near.

Mr. Bruce was one of the best known and best liked residents in the city. Of an amiable and cheerful disposition, he readily won and kept friends, and now at the hour of his death there are hundreds who will mourn his loss. Although in middle life he was usually accounted a young man by many. His splendid physique gave but slight indication of the march of years.

In early life Mr. Bruce was associated with the Chesapeake and Ohlo Rallway. For the past ten years, however, he had occupied the position of mechanical engineer with the Smith-Courtney Company.
